THE ASHLAND UNION

J. M. LANDIS & BRO.

Office-Opposite the Bank, Up-Stairs

"THE UNION, IT MUST AND SHALL BE PRESERVED."

THE ASHLAND UNION.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One copy, one year—in advance $2,00
If not paid with within six months, $2,25
If not paid till expiration of the year $2,50 No paper will be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at our option.

Business Directory.

JUDICIAL OFFICERS.

WM. OSBORN, Common Pleas Judge.
T C BUSHNELL Probate Judge.
E T DRAYTON, Ol'k Com. Pl'a & Dist. Cr'ts
A L CURTIS, Prosecuting Attorney.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

R M CAMPDELL, Anditor WILLIAM G HELTMAN, Treasurer, L H KIPLINGER, Sheriff. GEORGE W. URIE, Recorder. JOHN KEENE, Surveyor, ISREAL MARKEL, Coroner, WM. COWAN, IOHN VAN NEST, Commissioners.

HENRY WICKS. W. G. GALLOWAY, WM. CRAIG, MOSES LATTA. Infir'y Directors.

SCHOOL EXAMINERS, R M ZUVER) Ashland.
REM ACAMPBELL ...
ELIAS ERAUNFELTER, Savannah,

THA FIRE INCESS.

J. O. Jennings, Cash. H. Luther, Prest. FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF ASHLAND, OHIO.

Directors. Hulbert Luther, .

J. O. Jennings Jacob Crail, James Purdy. Do exclusively a banking business—buy and sell Eastern Exchange and Coin; Discount apon Individual security. Sell Revenue eta upa. 9. P. Cowan, Pres't.

Inade Gares, Teller,
J. W. Saryer,
L. S. Baumgarder, A. H. Myers, Cash'r. T. C. Bushbell, T. H. Baken, W. S. Battles, CITIZENS BANK.

Deslers in Gold, Silver, Exchange U. S. Bonds, Uncurrent money, Revenue Stamps, See. Discount approved paper, pay interest on time deposits, and do a General Banking Business.

THE TRIBLES.

MILLER HOUSE,

North side Main street, Ashland, Ohio, M. Miller, Proprietor, Good accommodations and reasonable bills.

MCNULTY HOUSE, Wm. McNulty, Proprietor, South side Main street, Ashland, Ohio.

THE TOTTE BEEN.

R. M. CAMPBELL, Attorney at faw, Ashland, O., will attend promptly to all legal business entrasted to his care. Bankrupt cases in U. S. Court will receive special attention.

JOHN J. JACOBS, Attorney at Law, Ashland, Ohio. All kinds of business belonging to the profession promptly attended to. Office, opposite First National Bank, up stairs.

JOHN D. JONES.

Attorney at Law, Ashland. Particular at fention paid to Collecting, and business in Probate Court. Office on Church street, between Main and Sandusky. WH. T. JOHNSTON, Attorney at Law, Ashland. Office-the one tately occupied by Osborn & Curtis, en Church atreet, near Main. Also authorized by the Government to procure Pension Cer-

BRT MCCOMBS & CURTIS, orneys and Counsellors at Law, Ashland, Office in Bank building, over Beer's

H. S. SEE.

Attorney at Law, Fire and Life Insurance d Notary Public. Particular attention paid to collecting, Probate businers, partition cases and execution of deeds, mortga-ges and Contracts. Office in Miller's Block, second story, Main street, Ashland, Ohio.

PHYSICIANS.

P. H. Clark, M. D. T. S. Hunter, M D JOS CLARK & HUNTER, Have associated themselves for the practice of Medicine and Surgery in the Village of Ashland. Special attention given to the treatment of Chronic cases. Office on Church street, near Main. BUL GEORGE W. HILL, M. D.,

Physician and Surgeon, Ashland, Ohio.— Particular attention will be paid to the treat-ment of the following special diseases: Dys-pepsia, disease of the Liver, the Kidneys, Scrafula and Epithellai Canseys.

J. P. COWAN, M. D. W. S. BATTLES, M. D. DRS, COWAN & BATTLES

ni pi Miscellaneous.

RALSTON & VANTILBURG,

Jewellers and Silversmiths, three doors west of Miller House, Ashland. Gold and Silver Pear and a choice variety of Jewelry kept constantly on hand. Highest price paid for old gold and silver. Repairing done to order and en reasonable terms.

House and Lot for Sale-Rare Bargain!

A very desirable residence, on Maple must go to the grave with not one lowing Street, in Ashland, can be bought at a or pitying heart to cheer his last moments or miss him when he was gone. It was

GIDEON GRINDEM'S CHRIST-

VOL. XXII.

MAS. BY JAMES D. M'CABE, JR.

The white-faced clock on the City Hall stared grimly out into the night, and its truthful hands informed the paople in the neighbrhood that it was eleven o'clock on Christmas eve. It was a gen-ume old fashioned Christmas eve, at that, and the streets of New York were white with snow, and the wind was whirling the drifts about fantastically, to the evident discomfort of the old apple and hot-corn women by the Park railing, who ingered at their posts in spite of the lateness of the hour, hoping to turn another honest penny from some passer-by before midnight. The old ballad-vender had packed up his stock in trade and betaken himself homeward long ago, and most of the New Yorkers had followed his example, so that the streets were almost descried. One man, at least, was abroad in the storm, and as he turned into a gate of the Park to make a short cut over to Broadway, where the stages were still running, the old apple woman, thinking that she might find in him another customer, began a pitiful petition to him to buy her wares, when he turned to her sharply, and the lamp-light fell full upon his face. A glance satisfied the woman, and it needed not his cold rebuff to cause her to shrink back from him with a frightened look. The man passed over to Broadway, and pausing a moment for a stage to come up, entered the clattering vehicle, and sattled himself in his sent as if totally unconscious of the presence of the other passengers. His entrance appeared to cast a gloom over them, for soon they grew silent, and wrapping their costs and shawls closer around them, wondered if it was not growing colder.

At last the stage paused, and the man descended from it. Turning into a cross street, and walking slowing as if careless of the storm, he reached a large brown stone mansion, where he rang the bell .-The door was opened by a fine looking servant in livery; but as soon as he saw the man, the domestic shrank back tim dly, and made room for him to enter -Throwing off his overcoat and hat and divesting himself of his wet boots, the man gave them to the servant.

"A cup of tea, David, in the Library," he said coldly, as he passed into a luxu-riously furnished apartment opening from

It was a beautiful room, and great taste had been displayed in its adornment. The book-cases and furniture were of the choicest kinds, an open fire burned in the handsome grate, and even o the minutest article, everything was in its place. Perfect order reigned throughout, but there was in everything that coldness and steruness that marked the owner of so much discomfort. The man drew a large arm-chair be fore the grate, and sinking into it, raised his feet to the fire. He never looked about him, but kept his goze fixed stead ily before him. Only once he raised his eyes to glance at a portrait which hung over the mantle. It was a woman's face -a face so pure and tender in its loveliness, that one could but wonder if it was really that of a hurran being. Only once the man gazed at it, and as he did so his eyes filled with tears, and his cold, hard mouth were an expression of in-tense pain. Then he sank back into his chair and his eyes fell upon the fire .-The domestic entered and placed the refreshments his master had ordered on a small stand at his side, and seeing the man so wrapped in thought, withdrew coiselesly without disturbing him, and still with that frightened, timid look he had first wora.

He was a very lonely man, this Gideon Grindem, in spite of all his wealth. He was a proud, cold man, and his uchappiness was chiefly of his own making .-Years ago, he had married a woman much younger than himself, but such a woman as one meets but once in a lifeime, and having seen, never forget .-Had she lived, he might have been happier and better, but she had been dead twelve years, and no other living being had fitted her place in the merchant's heart. She had left him one child, and, despite his coldness, he had lavished up on this little one a love only less strong than that he had borne for her mother At eighteen this girl had married against his will, a poor clerk that he had taken into his employ. He had cast her off forever, and now her name was never mentioned in his house. For four years a parent to turn away from a child, he had not seen her face save once, when Having formed a Co-partnership, will give prompt attention to all cases in the practice of Medicine and Surgery.

Ashland, July 3, 1867-21f

Having formed a Co-partnership, will give prompt attention to all cases in the practice for aid and forgiveness. He crushed the yearning of his heart for her, and turned but into the street, as he would have done she came one cold winter night to beg yearning of his heart for her, and turned It was a cruel act, and since that time he alone, and that when he came to die he he looked at the picture of his dead wife.

The refreshments by his side remained hands folded wearily, and his eyes fixed absently on the fire-so still, so tranquil, that one might have thought him asleep. And as he sat there, through the storm, and through the closed and curtained windows of the room, came the sweet tones of the midnight chimes of Trinity The music of the bells filled all the air rising and falling with the wind. It was a sad and solemn tale they old : for they sang that the Christ child was born.

"Gideon Grindem !" The voice was so soft, and yet so distinet and sweet, that it thrilled the merchant to his inmost soul. "Gideon Grindem," the voice said, "are you glad that Christmas has come again?"

The voice came from the fire, and the merchant glanced down at the hearth. There, standing just below him, was strange, but beautiful figure. It seemed like an angel, for its face was radiant with purity and beauty, and its garments were of spotless white. It was scarcely a foot high, and its eyes were so small that they seemed like diamond points.— Yet they looked straight into the merchant's soul, and read all that was passing there, and the proud man knew it, and shuddered.

"Gideon Grindem," said the voice again, "are you glad that Christmas has come?"

This time the tone was so reproachful that the tears started to Gideon Grind-am's eyes, and he bowed his his head "Alas! Of all the world I have noth ing to rejoice for to night,"

"Listen to me," said the little figure, softly. "I am Conscience, and I have come to speak with you. We have been strangers for a long time, but I have come back to you again. You must hear me to-night, for you cannot drive me away until morning; and O, if you are wise, Gideon Grindem, do not drive me away then !"

The merchant sat silent and trembling. He knew that he was powerless, and he could not take his eyes from the little figure on the hearth. But it was little no longer, for it grew in size every moment, until it assumed a gigantic form, and a mein so stern and terrible that the merchant almost shricked with terror as he gazed at it. Yet he could not turn his eyes away. One thing only remained unchanged; the voice of the figure was as sweet and solemn as ever. The mer-chant felt that he would give all his wealth to escape from its presence, but he could not move a limb.

"What do you want with me?" he pasped

"I will show you," said the figure, solemnly. "Come with me!"

The merchant felt a strong hand grasp him by the shoulder, and the next moment he was borne through space with a speed so rapid that it deprived him of the ability to cry out. Saddenly there mas day, too-and old Gideon rolling in was a pause, and he opened his eyes. He stared in astonishment at the scene be fore him.

It was a little, plainly furnished room Everything betokened contentment, tho' at the same time an absence of riches -A bright fire burned in the open grate and the soft light of a pleasant lamp lit up the room. A woman, neither old nor young, sat by the fire, and at her feet knelt a child with his little hands folded in prayer. There was a look of quiet happiness in the pale face of the woman and her soft eyes were bent tenderly upon the child at her feet, as he whispered his prayer so low that only she and the angels heard it. The merchant gazed at the scene in utter bewilderment. Then his eyes grew misty, and a great sob swelled up from his heart. He had recognized the two-the boy was himself and the woman was his mother.

"Do you ever pray now, Gideon Grin dem ?" asked the voice of the figure and the merchant knew that Conscience was still with him. God!" he chalabed "Deny! O me

The woman turned to him slowly, and he atretched out his hands imploringly. "O mother, mother !" he sobbed. "Let me be your innocent boy again !" But the sweet face clouded with a look of mingled sternness and horror, and the hand that had rested so tenderly upon the boy's head was raised with a revel lant gesture. The merchant sank back with a groan, and the vision faded.

"It is a terrible thing, Gideon Grindem," said the voice of Conscience, "for

The merchant shuddered. He was thinking of his own child, and how he had turned from her prayer for mercy .-The figure laid its hand upon him and her into the street, as he would have done drew him away. He knew they were to a dog that had strayed into his house, now in New York again, and that they It was a cruel act, and since that time he had been harder and aterner than ever. He had no friends. His acquaintance shunned him, and sought his presence only when business made it necessary.— and through. They passed into one of No visitor ever crossed his threshhold; the lowest quarters of the city, and encounter that were hurrying through the cuty in the death. He saw, to his surprise, his desk, where he kept his private papers and a considerable sum of money, open, and one of his servants searching cagerly among the contents. He tried to spring forward to stop the man, but he could be a consequence of the city, and encounter that were hurrying through the city in the death. He saw, to his surprise, his desk, where he kept his private papers and a considerable sum of money, open, and one of his servants searching cagerly among the contents. He tried to spring forward to stop the man, but he could be a considerable sum of his surprise, his desk, where he kept his private papers and a considerable sum of money, open, and one of his servants searching cagerly among the contents. were hurrying through the city in the no happy sounds or lights were ever tered a miserable dwelling. The figure forward to stop the man, but he could heard or seen within the walls of his house. led him up long flights of stairs, until not move, and when he endeavored to Even his servants feared and avoided finally they entered a chamber, so wretchhim. He was alone in the wide world.

and he knew it. He knew he must live back with disgust. A flickering tallow dip shed a fceble light through the room, adding to its A man lay on the bed silent and mo-misery a hundred fold. On a low bed a tionless. His hand were clasped mutely ed and his face twitched with pain when pallet two children lay asleep—for the ror and dismay. Never had he seen The Progress of the Reaction-he looked at the picture of his dead wife. while unconscious of the suffering around such a look of despair as that dead man's The Glorious Triumphs in The refreshments by his side remained them. The fire in the stove was dying face wore. So still, so terrible was it, away, and the room was growing colder that it seemed to be something supernauheavily upon him, and drew him close beside the sorrowful woman, as she sat sewing her life away; and as he gazed, the merchant saw that, is spite of the marks of care and suffering which it bore, the woman's face was wonderfully like that of his dead wife. No wonder, Goldon Grindem looked up with a start. heavily upon him, and drew him close thinking, and the knowledge that I am his dead wife, over the mantle piece .so helpless makes me wretched. Our fuel is out, and we can get no more until her face, and the eyes of the woman who the day after to-morrow, and we shall had been so dear to him, seemed full of freeze in this weather, and on Christmas sweetness and tenderness as they shone day, too. I could bear it for myself, down on him; carrying light straight into Nellie; but when I think of you and our his heart that had been so dark. children-"

ASHLAND, OHIO. WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1867.

His voice failed him, and he sobbed and remembered how he had seen it, with bitter anguish. The woman drop- then a great sob burst from him and he ped her work and bent over him, trying cried : to soothe him

"We trust in God, George," she whispered. "He will not desert us." "If your father were human, if he were not a fiend—" exclaimed her husband fiercely; but she interrupted him.

"He is my father, George," said the wife, softly. "I forgive him all the wrong he has done us, and I pray God to bless him and soften his heart.' Gideon Grindem groaned, and turning to the figure, cried imploringly : "Let us go away ! I cannot bear this!" The figure silently led him from the oom, and down the long stairs, out into the street again. It was no longer night there, for the sun was shining brightly, and the thoroughfares were thronged with busy crowds hurrying to their accustomed avocations. The air was keen and frosty, and the extra wrappings and comforters which the people were assured he merchant that it was very cold. The figure led him to a large store on one of the business streets, and only stopped when they reached the counting room, where soveral merchants were collected around the stove. Gideon Grindem and his companion paused beside them, but the gentlemen did not seem conscious of their presence. "What was that you said about Gideon Grindem?' asked one. "I said he is a heartless brute !" lied another.

"What new thing has he done?" "He has killed his daughter, and her husband and children. They froze to near East River. Think of it-on Christ

"He has a tough conscience," said the first speaker; "but I would not like to be in his place when he comes to die." "It is true," said the figure, solemnly your children !" The merchant's brain seemed on fire, nd he shricked aloud with anguish, for bear to look at it. "Have mercy on me !" he grouned --My heart is breaking !"

Your heart, miserable man !" exclaimed the figure, sternly. "Would you see your heart?" And without waiting for for a reply, the figure placed its hand beavily on the merchant's head, and howed it so that it seemed to turn his eyes in- to the mansion on Twenty Fifth street, ward. He could but look, and, to his last should have been, a hideous mass of corruption, so foul, so horrible, that he shuddered to look at it. "It has changed greatly since you gave it to your dead wife, Gideon Grindem," said the figure sadly. "Have mercy on me!" the merchant pleaded. "Were you merciful to your child?"

asked Conscience, sternly. "Have you kept the vow you made your dead wife, to love and protect her child always?" The merchant was silent. He knew he had been pitiless and cruel. ... "Come with me," continued the figure, "and I will show you what shall be the end of all this." Again the merchant felt himself borne swiftly along, and when he opened his eyes again, he found himself in his own

He stood in his chamber, and involuntarily marked the contrast between its the negroes went to the polls armed to luxurious comforts and the miserable garret in which his daugnter has to death. He saw, to his surprise, his desk, where he kept his private papers in keeping away the whites, with one exception, Captain Sam Dennett, who speak, his voice failed him. The figure ed and mean, that the merchant sank pointed silently to the bed, and Gideon Grindem looked helplessly in that direc-

man lay, wan and emaciated. A woman on his breast, and his eyes were open and great. Wasgain, if application is made a sad, sad thought to him, and some-how it came to him to-night with redoubles of sides.

Union or she Times offices.

Or miss him when he was goue. It was man lay, wan and emaciated. A woman on his breast, and his eyes were open and sad, sad thought to him, and some-how it came to him to-night with redoubles of sides.

Union or she Times offices.

This was why his eyes cloud-ly by the uncertain light; and on a low countenance, but he shrank back in hor-room for it."

every moment. Gideon Grindem gazed ral. The merchant shrank back with a with horror at the scene, and turned to groan; for the face upon which he looked fly from it, but the figure held its hand was his own.

"Is this to be the end?" he mouned,

for the woman was his daughter. A cold He was sitting in his library, with the sweat stood on his brow, and his heart untasted refreshments on the stand by his seemed to stop still. It was fearful to side, and the embers cold and lifeless in stand thus and gaze on such a dreadful the grate before him. The gas was burnone.

A slight movement of the man in the and through the curtained windows bed caused the woman to look up.

"Are you awake, George?" she asked. Christmas sun. The merchant rubbed "I have not been asleep, darling," re- his eyes and stared around vacantly.plied the man, sadly. "I cannot rest for Then his gaze rested on the portrait of The golden sunshine fell lovingly upon untarily he placed his hand on his heart,

"O, God be thanked! it was but a dream. Another look into the dear eyes of the woman who had loved him, and he sank down on his knees and bowed his head lowly and reverently. Gideon .Grindem was praying. It was still early morning when the handsome carriage of the merchant drove by the Park on its way to East River.— The old apple woman rejoicing in the sunlight that had followed the storm, was spreading her wares on her table when she was startled to see the handsome equipage pause before her stand, and to hear the same voice shat had repulsed her so rudely the night before, call to her to approach. She did so trem-bling, and when the merchant bade her cheerily, to hold out her hand, she obeyed because she feared to refuse. But her suprise was redoubled when she saw lying in her withered palm a bright golden eagle which sparkled joyously in the Christ mas sunlight. "What is this for ?" she faltered. "To keep Christmas with, old lady," said the merchant, cheerily. He signed to the driver to move on, but as the car- ers will not. Remember God's eye is in riage set off again, he caught a land my. Beware of levity and landing of good bless you, sir!" in the tearful tones with young men; a modest reserve with young men; a modest reserve with

Down through the vile streets, recking with filth and crime, and misery, that | Court and encourage serious conversation mark the worst quarter of the great city, with those who are truly serious and con the splendid equipage passed amid the versable; do not go into valuable compa wondering glances and remarks of the ny without endeaving to improve by the denizens who marveled to see it in such intercourse permitted to you. Nothing death yesterday, in a miserable hovel a place. It paused before a miserable dwelling, and the merchant sprang out with a flushed, excited face, and hurried up the rickety stairs fearing that one part of his dream might be true, after all. — He pushed open a door and entered miserable room. A glance satisfied him that the blessed day had brought no joy In the sight of God you have murdered to the inmates of this sad abode. A weman, pale and careworn, sat by an empty grate with a look of hopelessness on her sweet, young face, while a man, wan and the terrible words hurnt into his soul like sickly, lay on the bed with closed eyes, ed hot irons. The figure at his side was and two children rested on a rude pallet, so stern, so terrible, that he could not still happy in their innocent slumbers.

Startled by the noise, the woman looked up. Gideon Grindem's eyes clouded, and he held out his arms and faltered:

"My daughter, forgive me!' With a glad cry she sprang into his arms, and the ponitent father felt that he was forgiven.

In half an hour, the carriage returned but this time it was full of happy hearts, horror, he saw in the place where his who left the scene of their misery never The princely mansion had never seem ed so gay before as on this blessed Christmas when it rang with the merry should of the children, and echoed the soft laughter of the elder ones; and as Giecon Grindem listened he lifted up his heart and blessed God for the dream he had sent him to bring back so much happi-

How the Negroes Vote in the South.

A letter from Beaufort, South Carolina, under date of November 27, 1867, to the Charleston, News and Herald, says :

"The election in this district was not a ery quiet affair. In this town the colored population were rather noisy, and inclined to be riotous. In the country the teeth, to prevent any ticket being used except the red.

"On St. Helena Island they succeeded ception, Captain Sam Dennett, who fought his way through the sable crowd regardless of their firearms, and polled

That is the way negro suffrage work ir the South. How do the white people in the North like it ?

An editor at a dinner table, being asked if he would take some pudding, reRates of Advertising Advanced,

One square, one week,
Each subsequent insertion less than three months,
One square, three months, changeable
at pleasure,
One square six months, changeable at pleasure,
Yearly advertisements three squares
21.00 one year, Yearly advertisement stoff requares 1.21.00

Business cards, five lines or less; silves one year, Administratora' Executors'and Guare 2.00 diana Notices, Probate Notices, AllEditovialand Local Notices, per AllEditovialand Local Notices, per Advertisements Leaded of moster underthehead of Special Notices, and Dath-le Column advertisements, will be charged 50 percent miaddifforcothe above of

NO. 27

The Glorious Triumphs in Boston and Pittsburgh.

The late Democratic triumphs in Boston and Pittsburgh, at their municipal elections, are among the strongest evi dence that the political reaction which violence. A year ago, if there had been two places upon the face of the earth that the Democrats would have conceded of Boston in the East, and Pittsburgh

ing are all against the Radicals, and in favor of the Democracy. In the great contest between the bondholding capitalists vs the people, the Democracy, the as General Scott was in 1852. When

We therefore bring out our chanti

Behavior in Company.

On the subject of behavior in compa ny, Leigh Richmond gives the following

"Be cheerful but not gigglers. Be serious but not dull. Be communicative but not forward. Be kind but not ser vile. Beware of silly, thoughtless speech es; although you may forget them, oth

every face, and his ear in every compaout affectation is the only safe path .-

is more unbecoming, when one part o

the company is engaged in profitable conversation, than that another should be trifling, giggling and talking compar-

The "Good Time Coming."

In that day a man shall say to his ser rant, "What is the matter with the baadies and servants applying for situations: "Can you cook?" "Yes."—

"Wash?" "Yes." "All right. Who is your choice for State Milliner?" "Judy McGinuis." "Well, you can tramp."

of discussing the fashions; and men shall beat the homely man of wisdom for gov-sagacity and determined energy-Mark

A fieed Juror.

The Charlotte (N. C.) News says :

"The following is said to have occur-red at Union Superior Court: A colored gentleman on the jury is objected to on the ground of incompetency. The following questions are propounded by

What do you mean, then, by saying ou are a freeholder?

I means bein' free and holdin' on and I dun no, sar; I's green 'bout des

Here General Canby's order was read, from which is appeared he was competent; so the man and brother was duly Agriculture is the most useful.

the most healthful, and the most noble employment of man .- Washington

Sam, are you a freeholder ?

What is a vardict, Sam? Dun no, sar. What is a plaintiff?

What is a defendant?

sworn in, and took his seat.

Have you any land?

Yes, sar.

Dun no, sar.

And women shall talk politics instead

And the servant shall reply, "It ative nonsense to each other.'

Beware of levity and familiarity excellent advice to his daughters :

1867.—Enquirer.

Home, Farm and Gardenged

In fifteen years, sheep have increased in Ireland over 2,000,000. It is said frozen potatoes make more starch than fresh ones; they also make nice cake.

The Demo

has been sweeping over the country with An agricultural paper, telling how to fatten grese, says that "not less than two must be shut up together." such force during the past year is still going on with increased momentum and A mulch of coal ashes placed around current bushes, is said to be an effectual as the most hopeless for them, they would remedy for the current worm or caterpilhave been the great Radical strongholds To kill bushes in meadows or elsewhere, in Pennsylvania, in each of which the they should be cut in December. This Radical majorities have for years ranged has been ascertained by many experihigh into the thousands. Now the Republican organization has been beaten We'see it stated that a Vermont farmer and badly beaten, in both of them, and Democratic Mayors elected triumphant-ly-in Boston by five hundred, and in recently selected from a load of his pota-toes twenty six which filled a bushel bas-Pittsburgh by twelve hundred. The fact that in the latter city the Democrats To keep a copper tea kettle bright wash had the co operation of the workingmen it occasionly with a solution of salt and and the greenback Republicans - the same as they did in this city in the elecbuttermilk, rinsing thoroughly with clean water. tion of General Cary—invests the result with even more significance. The new phases which the political field is assum-The wheat crop of Galifornia the pretent year is estimated at 15,000,000 hush-els, equaling New York in the produc-tion of this important farm product.

An agricultural society in New York, recently, spent several days arguing how flax great. Every one had a theory, and laboring men, and the conservative Republicans will vote together in a solid labored earnestly to show that he alone mass, and will constitute an overwhelming majority. So great is the reaction, that it is by no means impossible that the Radical candidate for President next done, and lo1-all were wrong.

year will be beaten in the States as badly A correspondent of the Rural American recommends the following cure for lice on cattle; Take 12 or more goodsuch cities as Boston and Pittsburgh turn their backs upon the Radical party we sized Irish potatoes, pound them fine, may be sure that it has but little life in then put into two gallons and a half of water, boil thoroughly, then let it cool, cleer for a loud crow over these, the last and apply as a wash, to cows, calves, mares and colts, and all other creatures and finishing Democratic majorities of SHEEP IN THE ORCHARD -The Praire Farmer says : "One of our most prominent orchardists tells us that in one of his orchards where sheep ran during the season, the apple crop was almost entire-ly unaffected by the codling moth. Next season his entire orchard will be pastured with sheep. This is an item worth remembering. POTATO ROLLS .- Boil two pounds of potatoes, pass through a cullender, or mash them well; add two ounces of buttor and a pint of milk, a little salt, one gill yeast, and as much flour as will make a soft dough; set them to rise one hour, and bake. Sweet potatoes make beauti-

Brevities and Levities.

A Providence boy, five years of age, having stolen a can of milk, his mother, took him to task, with moral suation, and wound up her discourse by exclaiming: "What in the world was you going to do with the milk, anyhow?" "I was going to steal a little dog to drink it," was the crushing reply.

Children in mission schools are pretty sharp sometimes, and show it in rather unexpected ways. A boy whose teacher was absent pretty often, came to the enhas been sick for hours." "And where perintendent with this request, "Say, is its mother?" "She is out electioneering for Sallie Robbins." And such conversations as these shall transpire between Mister, can't you give me a regular man I am tired of being shoved around so."

Luck lies in bed, wishing the postman would bring him the news of a legacy.— Labor turns out at hix p'clock, and, with busy pen or ringing haramer, lays the frundation of a competence.

A down East paper, puffing off a certain gamp, says it is the "best ever used for cleaning a dirty man's face. We have tried it, and therefore we ought to know." nurse the baby while their wives go to the polle to rote. And in that day the man who bath beautiful whiskers shall A man who has a wife or sweetheart ernor, and the youth who waltzes with exquisite grace shall be the chief of ponamed Lize, is not to be believed in anything, for he's always telling Lize about lice in preference to the man of practiced everything. A young man who is desperately in love, says that he has been electrified with a gal-yanic battery.

danier, day be

Why is a person asking a question the rangest of individuals? Because he is trangest of the querist.

Much adieu about nothing-the parting of two young ladies. The lap of luxury-A cat enjoying her milk. The harness of life -The traces of

A Democratic Gun from New Hampshire,

Even New England seems to have caught the spirit of the great reaction that is setting in against Radicalism. A day or two ago the telegraph announced a Democratio triumph in the municipal election in Boston—the home of the Supraers and Phillipses, and the hot bed of Radicalism generally. To day see have to announce the triumphant election of a Democratic Mayor in Manches-ter, N. H.—the first instance of the kind for years, and a case fully as remarkable A rare mind—Mind your own business and Presidential elections — Eng.